> Free TAFE training and apprenticeships are now available for Australian Defence Force veterans moving to civilian careers under the Defence to Civilian Success training program.

The Queensland Government's funding will support up to 300 Queensland veterans into new careers as they transition from the Australian Defence Force.

The Defence to Civilian Success training program builds on the Queensland Government's commitment to support veterans by matching their skills with more educational opportunities, helping to lead them to another rewarding career post transition.

TAFE Queensland has a long history assisting veterans transition to civilian life, which will now be enhanced by the training program, providing further opportunities to those veterans who may need support.

"Moving back to civilian life can present challenges for veterans and their families, and TAFE Queensland is extremely proud to be able to provide professional guidance and educational pathways as these veterans take the next step in their careers," TAFE Queensland Chief Executive Officer Mary Campbell said.

"Our ex-ADF Defence Solutions Officers understand the skills, language, experience and knowledge that veterans have gained through their military service and are able to translate these skillsets into educational and employment pathways that lead to meaningful civilian employment opportunities," she said.

"The Defence to Civilian Success training program will enable both the Queensland Government and TAFE Queensland to further extend our support to more veterans as they transition into new and exciting careers," she said.

TAFE Queensland ex-ADF Defence Solutions Officers are looking forward to being able to assist more veterans into progressive civilian careers and are available across metropolitan and regional areas throughout Queensland.
